

Software Licence Terms

- There is a free trial period of 30 days after which an annual subscription is payable to Actuarial Solutions Limited for a licence for continued use of the software.
- A licence and annual subscription is required for each copy of the software installed on a separate computer.
- Initial annual subscription for licence to cover installation on up to three computers:
£650 pa plus VAT (total cost for up to three computers)

Initial annual subscription for a licence for installation on each additional computer after the third:

£325 pa plus VAT (per computer).

- Subscription terms relate to the total number of computer installations per customer and not the number of computer installations per customer location.
- The first year's subscription period for a licence will date from the end of the 30-day free trial period of the first customer installation or the date of purchase of the licence if later.
- The annual subscription licence includes entitlement to telephone support and all upgrades to the existing functions of the software issued by Actuarial Solutions Limited during the currency of the licence.
- Access to material published by Continuous Mortality Investigation Limited (CMI Limited) using the software is subject to the 'CMI Terms and Conditions for Subscribers'.
- Actuarial Solutions Limited reserves the right to increase the annual subscription fee for the renewal of an existing licence.
- Additional licences for installation of the software on additional computers may be subscribed for at any time on Actuarial Solutions Limited's terms for new licences prevailing at the time.
- Software licence terms and subscription fees may be changed without notice.
- These terms do not apply to installation of the software on a network server.
- These terms should be read in conjunction the Licence Agreement displayed on installation.
